“ One of the Greatest Men I have ever Known

Written by Natalie Meche Lagneaux

Paw Emery was one of the greatest men I have ever known. In his life he portrayed compassion, love, honesty, and loyalty, and he performed acts of faith because he was strong in his beliefs. He was a tough man, but he was also very humble, and once you made a friend of him, you made a friend for life. There is nothing he would not do for you. He loved you as you loved him. Today, I want to share some kind words about him as he is welcomed into our heavenly home.

He was born into a wonderful family and raised by hardworking parents. He and his siblings learned at a very young age about hard work and love and compassion. He learned all the fundamentals in life growing up with his siblings, and the memories they shared growing up were passed down through his wonderful story telling. Paw would captivate you with his childhood memories. He would tell you all that he went through growing up and how that made him the man he was today.

In his early twenties and thirties, he learned from his marriages and went through so much to provide for his family. He made mistakes sometimes, but he learned that making mistakes is how you grow as a person. His twenties and thirties were special for him. He welcomed two sons, Raphael and Troy. He did his best to provide for them. He watched them grow throughout their lives and watched them become the successful men and amazing dads that they have become. He was also a great Step-Dad to Ricky, Rhonda, and Steve and truly loved them as his own, so he was proud of all their accomplishments as well. He taught his children and step-children lessons that will last throughout their lives. I know he is proud of the legacy he left behind in them.

Throughout his twenties, thirties and forties he made a name for himself in the oilfield. He made many a friends through his hard work and dedication. There are many who know of him because he was an important man for getting his job done. In his late forties and early fifties, Paw married the love of his life Loula “Lou.” He welcomed his step-daughters, Cherie and and Gina. Paw loved Lou with all his heart, and they are one of the greatest duos. If you ask someone about Paw, they knew Lou was his other half. Their relationship over the last forty years has blossomed so that they could read each other’s minds and finish each other’s sentences. They helped one another and loved one another, and their love has been truly special to watch.

In his forties through his late eighties, he became a wonderful grandfather, step-grandfather, great-grandfather, and great-great grandfather. I know I speak for all of my cousins when I say that we will truly miss his humor, laughter, and funny stories. He always knew how to captivate you with his stories and his own interpretation while he told it to you. He was present in our lives as much as possible. He would spoil us with candy from his pocket, and he would give us a dollar bill to go buy ourselves something each time we saw him. He would do anything for us. He would be present for baptisms, birthdays, and holidays. He will forever be in our memories because of all that he has done for us.

As I think of all that he has been through in his life and all that he will leave behind, it is with great sadness that we say “Goodbye,” but not really “Goodbye,” because we will see him again. He is leaving behind a legacy of love, faith, humility, and kindness. He has left his earthly dwelling, but he will be forever in our hearts and memories. When God sees a reflection of Himself in us, he calls us home. May God wrap his loving arms around Paw Emery and welcome him home.
