“ We are thankful to make Marshall’s funeral today in Katy, TX. Our family got to know Marshall through our young adult group in Rayne, LA. He lived right around the corner from our home. Marshall was a very prayerful individual and striving for holiness to be a Saint. He will be greatly missed by us and all who knew him in Rayne. We are praying for the repose of Marshall’s soul and for his fiancé Addie. You are loved and missed Marshall. -Joshua, Tess, and Baby Joseph

“ Coy and Marshall met in 5th Grade when we moved into Pin Oak Village. They have been friends ever since. He was a frequent and welcome visitor in our home and I loved all the antics the boys got up to. They especially liked taking apart and "repurposing" small house hold appliances. All I could do was roll my eyes and laugh. Marshall was just always there and I couldn't have asked for a better friend for my son. The picture is of him and Coy when we were all at Whataburger and Simon Biles walked in. I didn't remember Marshall being there until I saw the picture again. Marshall was just always around and we loved it. The last time I saw Marshall was when he dropped by just before we moved a couple of years ago. He and Coy were going to his place to play video games. I am grateful I was able to give him a hug and let him know how much we loved having him around. To the Anderson's and all those who love Marshall, I am so sorry for your loss. Our family's prayers are with you.

“ I have been numb ever since seeing this post last night. I have so many great memories of all of you. My favorite of Marshall is from the year the kids had “businesses “ in Challenge. Marshall was probably in 4th or 5th grade. Working in teams they created a product to “sell” their product to other kids, and a commercial to sell their product. I don't remember what product Marshall's group made, but I will never forget their commercial. In those days Geico commercials always included a celebrity. Marshall's group, and I know he was a driving force in this whole production, did a parody of Geico and their celebrity was Hannah Montana. To this day, I remember that commercial as one of the funniest, most creative things any of my students ever did. Marshall, whose sense of humor was paramount, never used it inappropriately. He was kind and generous. Everyone wanted to work with Marshall. At this terrible time, please focus on the memories. My love and prayers go out to you all.

“ I met Marshall two years ago, shortly before him and my dear friend and sister, Addie Burleigh, started dating. He was such a quirky fellow, which is what I LOVED about his personality. Even more so he was full of joy and humor, always seeing the bright side of every situation and had a heart of love and generosity to every person he encountered. He was a light God was able to shine through, which was evident in his Faith-centered life. He truly loved his fiancée, Addie, and had a firm mission of serving God and others in their life together. I will truly miss the dear friend and brother I had in Marshall.

“ I met Marshall on Mardi Gras in 2022. Addie was introducing her boyfriend and he made quite the impression. I snapped a picture of him completely engulfed as Addie sang. I thought it was so cute and sweet how crazy he was about her. They only got cuter and sweeter and crazier for each other. And the most beautiful part was he was even more in love with God. He quickly became one of my favorite people to hang with during family gatherings. Between the friendliness, the singing all the time, and his competitiveness in board games, it was so fun to hang around Marshall. My heart goes out to his whole family and all of his friends, and just a little extra bit for Addie. My prayers are focused on y'all.

I am so incredibly sad to learn of the death of Marshall. He was my right hand man in the Eunice symphony orchestra, having been our concert master for the last year. His warm smile was so contagious and everyone just loved him. My heart goes out to the family and my deepest sympathy to all of you. Hold tightly to your heavenly father.
