“Melissa, you are my everything. It's been an honor and blessing to have been put together in this lifetime. We shared so many good times and even our bad times we counted on one another. I can't understand how people can worship a God who would put you thru the life you had. Kids were mean & bullied you as a child. People were mean when you became an adult. People would talk about you, lie on you and not defend you while people did these things. To come here and join you in life, I'd overhear, walk-in on and be told of how people disrespected you and I was determined from then on to forever stand up for you. Remove you from those people. And like you said when you grabbed my hands and looked me in the eye with all your strength and said ITS YOU N ME BABY. NO ONE ELSE's opinion or 'if I were you' matters. I miss you so much. I talk to every picture I pass with you in it. I can't imagine living without you. I told you I didn't want to do this without you. Now I find myself lost broken and robbed. I don't know if I will ever celebrate the God you referred to because he sure failed as what I thought a 'father' would be. Your chemo doctor dismissed our wishes. The hospital failed you. And I find comfort in knowing you got out of all the other crap this earth offers. I love you more today than before. I pray you become our guardian and abroad
Cover in protection, cloak our home and land in invisibility, to keep your step daughter Halei & IZRA safe from people with malicious intent. Come see me in my dreams, for I plan to cover my head and sleep a long long time in hopes of visiting with you. I tried baby. You know. Devoted. Infinity

I knew Melissa from the time she was little. Loved her mother too. Melissa was always welcome in my home. She had a heart of gold and was very special. Even though I didn't get to visit with her much in her adult life, I knew where she was and that she was happy. Will miss her.
